

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Adams, Fred and Weiskopf, Daniel. An Introduction to the Philosophy of Psychology. United Kingdom: Cambridge University Press, 2015.

Atwood, Margaret. Alias Grace. New York: Nan A. Talese, 1996.

Bedient, Calvin, Bennett, Mark, and Hough, Jessica. Family. Ridgefield, Connecticut: Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art, 2002.

Boss, Pauline. Ambiguous Loss. Cambridge, Massachusetts: Harvard University Press, 1999.

Elkins, James. On the Unrepresentable in Pictures.

<http://www.jameselkins.com/images/stories/jamese/pdfs/representation-limits.pdf>

Foer, Jonathan Safran and Schwabsky, Barry. Dana Schutz. New York: Rizzoli, 2010.

Horodner, Stuart. Jessica Jackson Hutchins. Bomb Magazine.

<http://bombmagazine.org/article/3523/jessica-jackson-hutchins>

Hutchins, Jessica and Hepworth Wakefield (Gallery). Jessica Jackson Hutchins: Everything Erblaut. Wakefield: The Hepworth Wakefield, 2013.

Kuennen, Joel. Practicing Wellness: An (Art) Therapy Session with Zachary Cahill. ArtSlant. August 2014.

http://www.artslant.com/chi/artists/rackroom/208914-zachary-cahill?utm_source=08052014&utm_medium=email&utm_campaign=Eslant

Levine, Cary and Schutz, Dana. Dana Schutz: If the Face Had Wheels. New York: Prestel Publishing, 2011.

Meier, Allison. Photographs document the global traditions of living with the dead. Hyperallergic. April 15, 2015.

<http://hyperallergic.com/189391/photographs-document-the-global-traditions-of-living-with-the-dead/>

Mountford, Peter. How I came to live in a chair emporium. Jan 15, 2015. NyTimes.

http://www.nytimes.com/2015/01/18/fashion/modern-love-how-i-came-to-live-in-a-chair-emporium.html?rref=collection%2Fcolumn%2Fmodern-love&contentCollection=fashion&action=click&module=NextInCollection®ion=Footer&pgtype=article&_r=0

“Reinvention is central to our national mythos, and it’s appealing, obviously. But you can’t wish away your scars; you have to wear them where they landed. Recently, I have come to see that while we will change whether or not we want to, our history — what we've inherited from others, and from ourselves — doesn't change. Our task is not to wipe a difficult history away and start fresh, but to get right with it.”

Polley, Sarah et al. Stories We Tell. Santa Monica, California: Lionsgate, 2013. Movie

Sollins, Marybeth et al. Art:21 Art in the Twenty-First Century. New York: Harry Abrams, Inc., 2005.

Laylah Ali chapter.

Strohminger,, Nina and Nichols, Shaun. Your brain, your disease, your self. Aug 21, 2015. NYTimes.

<http://www.nytimes.com/2015/08/23/opinion/your-brain-your-disease-your-self.html?ref=todaysspa&r=0>

“We found that disruptions to the moral faculty created a powerful sense that the patient's identity had been compromised. Virtually no other mental impairment led people to stop seeming like themselves. This included amnesia, personality change, loss of intelligence, emotional disturbances and the ability to perform basic daily tasks.”

Strohminger, Nina and Nichols, Shaun. Neurodegeneration and Identity. Psychological Science. September 2015 vol. 26 no. 9 1469-1479

<http://pss.sagepub.com/content/early/2015/08/11/0956797615592381>

<http://pss.sagepub.com/content/26/9/1469>

The Association of Frontotemporal Degeneration.

<http://www.theaftd.org/>